Upcoming Concerts

- ❖ October 26, 2008: sitar and sarod joint concert in Gotanda, Tokyo
- ❖ November 1, 2008: A Diwali Charity Sitar concert in Ebara, Tokyo—there will be a special performance by Japanese Kathak dancer Ms. Masako Sato and Indian children.

Music for Children to Make Them Happy

- ← The small sitar Dr. Chandrakant played at the age of four. The body is similar to a mandolin. It was specially made by Pune based sitar maker and player Ustad Shabuddin Mirajkar who identified the talent in young Chandrakant.

Chandrakant Sardeshmukh started playing the sitar at the age of four. He was declared a child prodigy at the age of eight by Pandit Ravishankar who along with Mrs. Annapurnadevi taught him for 12 years. Now an internationally acclaimed sitarist, he lives in Tokyo and travels around the globe promoting traditional Indian Music. He gives therapeutic music sessions providing people with deep relaxation and presents music for children with special needs to enjoy. He has a Ph.D in Samaveda (Sanskrit) and teaches music through workshops and as visiting lecturer.

With the grace of Goddess Durga, Anjali could set its foot on its teen age. Thirteen years ago, it was started with a humble beginning and as it grew older it became more and more resourceful with the dedicated support from all corners. When a devotee does not know how to chant properly, Omnipresent God, indeed accepts the prayer if there is sincere devotion in it. With this conviction in mind, we ventured out in the challenge of Anjali's publication. Publication of a literary magazine like Anjali needs various supports at different stages of its preparation.

We would like to thank the Embassy of India in Tokyo and the advertisers for their continued patronage.

Anjali is unique in terms of its multilingual and multicultural tradition and we continued to maintain this uniqueness. Native speakers of different languages with different cultural background contributed articles, art, photograph etc for Anjali. We sincerely thank each of them for their valuable support. We thank Karabi Mukherjee, Rita Kar, Indranil Roy Chowdhury, Bhaswati Ghosh and Viswa Ghosh who helped us in proof reading. We thank Sandipon Saha who continued his help in compiling advertisements.

Syamal Kar and Arijit Basu did an excellent job in collecting greetings and advertisements that play a vital role in making the publication possible. We thank both of them. We greatly appreciate Shobi Insatsu for printing Anjali. We thank Shonu, Tannistha, Rupkatha who allowed their mothers to temporarily withdraw their attention from them.

Finally, Syamal Kar and Ruma Gupta provided their valuable guidance throughout the entire process. We sincerely thank them.
